

A network consist of two or more computer that are linked in order to share resources, exchange file or allow electronic communication.